SCOPE OF WORK

The aim of enhancing the recovery efforts and understanding in detail the post-covid travel landscape and the economic context across the globe and especially in the countries in which South African Tourism operates leads the organization to seek suitable suppliers that can provide this kind of information and strategic, insight, and recommendations focused on the Middle East region.

South African Tourism is looking for specific and detailed market sizing analysis and seeking suppliers with adequate skill and experience with scanning the information across the travel landscape including aviation data, lodging data, and other relevant information to identify the travel opportunity in the region. The research needs to unearth insights and trends in travel.

The main challenge is identifying the opportunity for travel within the Middle East, identification of the consumers most inclined to travel, most inclined to travel long-haul, and the most inclined to travel to Africa and South Africa. The sizing and identification of segments need to be clear on the size of the opportunity per GCC market, and within each GCC market the size of the population, % of population with passports, % of population that participate in various forms of travel, % of population that travel overnight domestically, % of the travelling population that travel regionally, internationally and travel long-haul respectively.

In addition to this we need to understand the dynamics within each country, particularly focusing on the composition of the population of residents that are Expats, those who are citizens of the specific country, and the proportion of residents from other GCC countries. The complexity of the Middle East as a market is a challenging mix of different peoples, cultures, languages, values, and social norms. These dynamics need to be borne in mind during the conducting of this analysis.

PROJECT OBJECTIVES

1. Develop a robust research methodology to provide a holistic and detailed snapshot of the present world and the trends that will shape the next year and the rest of the decade in the region and in each specific GCC nations
2. Identify multiple data sources and interrogate the various sources against each other, have pros and cons for usage of the data and limitations to each of the data sources
3. Population of the GCC regions and each GCC market
 - a. Population of residents, citizens, and ex-pats
4. Travel market size for the region and each GCC market
 - a. Travel market size and trends among residents, citizens, and ex-pats
5. Travel behavioural analysis and trends for the region and each GCC markets
 - a. Travel behaviours and trends among residents, citizens, and ex-pats
6. Identification of travel segments, the characteristics that differentiate between segments and the characteristics common across all the segments
{NB: residents, citizens, and ex-pats are not segments}
7. Identification of opportunities for targeting the attractive segments
8. Identification of future trends and predictions of the future outlook of travel from the regions
9. Recommendation for South African Tourism on the best opportunities and the most attractive markets in the region and the segments to prioritize in marketing materials

With all the above in mind we require it to be compiled into a final presentation:
